INTRODUCTION TO THE FIRST EDITION, APRIL 1975

It is now recognized that, as a Family Division Court continues to fulfill its obligation to the community which it serves; it is utilizing an expanding range of services not always provided directly by, or under the control of, the Ministry of the Attorney General.

In addition, the Family Division Courts are being called upon to provide a high degree of in-Court social service delivery to their clients, over and above the basic adjudicative functions.

It is this therapeutic aspect of the Court's function with which this report is primarily concerned.

This initial survey of in-Court services and available community resources is intended to provide:

- a provincial summary of Court services as well as the range and utilization of community resources.
- a basis for regional, county and district comparison.
- an opportunity to locate areas lacking resources.
- suggestions for new approaches to community involvement by the Court.

Subjects surveyed in this report include:

- Intake
- Legal Aid
- Crown Attorneys
- Probation
- Interpreters
- Counselling: Family, Marriage and Credit
- Medical Services
- Children's Aid Societies
- Youth Bureaus
- Volunteer Agencies and Organizations

All information has been supplied by Administrators of the Court offices in written and verbal form during the summer of 1974.

INTRODUCTION

In April 1975, the Office of the Chief Judge of the Provincial Courts (Family Division) published a report on the range of services available to, and utilized by, Family Division courts throughout the Province.

We are gratified to report that the study has found a very wide audience in Canada, the United States and commonwealth countries. So persistent have been requests for the earlier report that we have repeated the survey in order that the data would be more pertinent to present conditions with the court system.

PART I - INTAKE

Information was sought on the following:

A. Whether Intake is provided before a charge is laid.

B. If it is provided, is it mandatory.

C. Who performs Intake.

D. Whether or not the Court Administrator feels it would be an asset to have a full-time Intake Worker on staff.

For the purpose of this report, 'Intake' has been defined as:

> "Any contact with clients involving interviews for the purpose of defining the nature of their problem, or problems, determining the alternative courses of action available, making referrals to outside agencies, and/or helping to formulate their long range objectives."

'Client' is defined as:

> "Any person seeking assistance, information, or guidance from the Family Court."

PART IV - FAMILY COUNSELLING

Information was sought on the role of the Court Staff in providing Family Counselling Services to Court Clients.

In order that we might obtain an estimate of the total staff involvement, our definition of 'Interview' is very broad (see below). Few Courts keep records on services of this nature so that the data reported is an approximation only.

Areas Covered:

A. Estimate of Number of Interviews Conducted in a Year.

B. Estimate of the Number of Families Involved.

C. Who Conducts the Interviews.

Definitions:

"Degreed Family Counsellor":

Persons with degrees in social work or who have had formal training to develop skills in parent and child counselling and counselling related to financial, health or housing problems, or any problems concerning the general welfare of the family unit.

"Interview":

Any personal consultations, conversations or discussions with Family Court clients concerning the general welfare of their family unit, that take place at the Court or on the telephone.

Note: This material is exclusive of J.P. Interviews.

The study indicates that, in many instances, they are not being utilized. Where this occurs the reason for non-use will be indicated in brackets.
